Seller's description

This awesome individual was found in Southern California while on a meteorite hunting trip. The outside appears very ordinary, right? But the inside is out of this world!! The inside center core is made of a shiny gray and white hard metal. It is all but non magnetic. It only attracts to a very strong magnet and even then there is only a slight attraction. I have pictured both halves of this individual on this listing so that you can see the whole thing, but ONLY the LARGER of the two pieces is up for this auction. This piece measures 1" x 1" x 1" at its highest & widest areas. The SMALLER of the two pieces is listed in ANOTHER auction here on ebay. If you want to bid on that piece as well, so that you can own the whole individual, click on, "see sellers other items" You are welcome to bid on the SMALLER one as well. Both of the auctions will end about the same time with this one ending FIRST, by a couple of minutes only.

From WIKIPEDIA, the free encyclopedia

All the gold, cobalt, iron, manganese, molybdenum, nickel, osmium, palladium, platinum, rhenium, rhodium, ruthenium, and tungsten mined from Earth's crust, and that are essential for economic and technological progress, came originally from the rain of asteroids that hit Earth after the crust cooled. This is because, although asteroids and Earth accreted from the same starting materials, Earth's relatively stronger gravity pulled all heavy siderophilic (iron-loving) elements into its core during its molten youth, more than four billion years ago. This left the crust depleted of valuable elements until asteroid impacts re-infused the depleted crust with metals.

The 3 main types of asteroids are the C-type, S-type, and M-type.

1. C-type asteroids have a high abundance of water and a lot of organic carbon, phosphorus, and other key materials found in fertilizer.
2. S-type carry little water but they contain numerous metals including: nickel, cobalt and more valuable metals such as gold, platinum and rhodium. A small 10-meter S-type asteroid contains about 1,433,000 pounds of metal with 110 pounds in the form of rare metals like platinum and gold.
3. M-type asteroids are rare but contain up to 10 times more metal than S-type.

Iridium is white, resembling platinum, but with a slight yellowish cast metal.

Rhodium is a rare, hard silvery-white metal.

Palladium is a rare and lustrous silvery-white metal.

Platinum is a precious, gray and white metal. . .
