Description

Dhofar 1236 Meteorite

History of the Dhofar 1236 meteorite : I found this meteorite on February 28, 2005 at 2:50 pm. I was on a meteorite hunting expedition in the Oman desert and this was one of over 50 meteorites we found.

Classification Data: This meteorite is not classified, it is complete. If you want the stone to be classified, it has all the information ready to send off.

The photos below show the extreme desert conditions on the Arabian Peninsula. DO NOT attempt to undertake an expedition unless you are fully prepared for every possible problem, we use satellite phones, multiple GPS's, and several vehicles, as you are hundreds of miles from the nearest town. It is very dangerous and expensive, so the prices of these meteorite are very low compared to the work and risks to acquire them.

This offering consists of the entire main mass uncut, with all data, and even the field collection bag with photos of the stone in situ. It is too small for me to get it classified, although the buyer has all data here to do so. This piece weighs 149.8 grams in total. It is a chondrite for sure, but type unknown. As you can see, it is a very nice stone. I estimate this piece to be valued at ~$200.00.
